* The difference between Photoshop and other photo editing software:_ It is far more powerful than Adobe's other standard graphics program, Illustrator. Photoshop is also a vector editing program. This means that you can do advanced graphic design work, such as putting text in a circle, or creating intricate vector shapes with Illustrator. Photoshop also gives you more flexibility in the creation of raster images, such as letting you use a pixel grid with Photoshop's layer-based editing system. It can also use the canvas to send your image to print and put it in a frame. You can import or create vector graphics, and then edit them with Photoshop's powerful and intuitive tools. After you're done, export them into a format for printing or sending as a physical image. * A portable program that you can use on any PC and that you can carry to the editing location:_ Because it was designed to be used on a PC, it is capable of sharing files over the network. If you have access to a folder on your computer, you can sync that folder with Photoshop files on your computer or on another computer. You can also sync folders from Photoshop on a Mac. * It's fully customizable:_ There are many options for changing the look of your work. You can lighten an image, remove an object, or introduce a new color and change the color in just about any area of an image. You can even use it as a photo editor for trimming off unwanted objects in your images, or to introduce new colors and lighten an image. * A versatile program that can handle a wide variety of tasks:_ It can modify an image's settings, or even import other files into Photoshop to be used in your image. You can also load files that contain graphics into a Photoshop file, and use Photoshop to create and manage your graphics, or load them into other programs for more editing. * Its layers help you organize your work:_ You can create and organize layers that allow you to make changes and changes and not have to merge all layers into one. * Its file format makes importing your images easier:_ Photoshop is a massive file format. However, it's good because it's so large and because you can save your work in a very stable format. * It can handle large files:_ It's capable of working with files as big as a gig

The image you see to the left is the original 100x100 jpg. It is beautiful, however it has a lot of flaws, as it was taken with a Canon Rebel T5i, at ISO100 and an aperture of f/4.7. It has a severe overexposed in the sky and a major drop in saturation in the panda. First thing we need to do is to reduce the file size by resizing it. In this case, we will use the online tool JPG Mini (JPG Mini). Just follow these steps: Download and install JPG Mini on your computer Download the image from the link you have to the left and open it. Click on the Convert! button and a new window will open with all the options to change. Click on Edit Thumbnail and then Resize the image to 100x100. The size of the final image is in bytes. It is below 3kb, which is very small. Note: As you can see in the image below, it is also possible to resize the image to a smaller size. Now that the image is already small, we need to add some text and a vector to make it a logo. In this case, we will use the online tool Shoccerlogo (Shoccerlogo). Go back to Photoshop and drag the logo you have to the canvas. Don't forget to keep the object mode, and then select edit. Then, change the colour to white. You can do it by changing the colour palette or by using the RGB or HSB (Hue, Saturation and Brightness) controls. Now, select the text tool and select the white logo. Then, click on Type. Change the font and text size. Then, press OK. Next, we will add a font effect on the text. Select the text tool, and then, select the text layer that we just created. Then, click on the Effect icon. Now, select the Texture and click on the Gaussian Blur on the top bar. Drag it to the image until you find a good value. Now, we will add the text shadow to the logo. Select the text tool and click on Create Layer. This will create the text shadow as a new layer. Now, we will add a drop shadow and put it below the text. So, select the text layer and change the blending mode to Over 388ed7b0c7

Q: Ajax call to controller in asp.net mvc not working I try to call action method in my controller by using ajax call, but it's not working. I add the jquery code as, `$(function() { $.ajax({ url : '@Url.Action("TransData", "ProjectDetail")', type : "GET", data : { Name : "xxxxxx", Company : "xyz" }, dataType : "html" }); });` and controller method is `[HttpGet] public ActionResult TransData(string Name, string Company) { DataList(); } public ActionResult DataList() { DataView viewData = new DataView(); viewData = db.TransData(); return View(viewData); }` Thanks in advance. A: You should use HttpGet method instead of HttpPost method. In your view `@using (Ajax.BeginForm(new AjaxOptions { HttpMethod = "Get" })) { }` and in your controller `[HttpGet] public ActionResult TransData(string Name, string Company) { DataList(); } public ActionResult DataList() { DataView viewData = new DataView(); viewData = db.TransData(); return View(viewData); }` Update on prognosis and current treatment options in the management of sickle cell disease. A QUICK and dirty analysis of the lead-up to the outbreak of the Asian flu shows no one was prepared and there were warnings from experts that a flu pandemic is not a thing of the past. Top health officials were even warning about a potential pandemic in 2004 — and two years later another flu virus began to circulate at a level high enough to start sounding alarms. Now the predictions are being belied by the rapid spread of the A (H1N1) swine flu in the United States, which has killed more than 500 people and spread to 39 states as of yesterday. The disease, which is similar to the Asian flu, has been linked with more than 4300 deaths and claims three times as many hospitalisations as seasonal flu. The disease, which is similar to the Asian flu, has been linked with more than 4300 deaths and claims three times as many hospitalisations as seasonal flu. Following the foot-and-mouth disease crisis of 2001, during which cattle were plagues around Europe, a panel of scientists met with the World Health Organization and decided that a global pandemic is now possible. Concerns grew in 2003 when the H5N1 bird flu virus, which was first isolated in 1999, was shown to be transmittable between birds and humans — it spread between birds and humans. More than 10 per cent of human viruses are deadly to at least one species, so the killing of 10 per cent of the world's population would have a global impact. H5N1 kills birds but there is no evidence of it being transmitted to humans. This has raised the possibility that the virus could mutate into a form that would pass easily through the air from person to person.
